General Manager's Message

The past several months, Lakeland PBS has worked very hard to bring you impactful coverage of the coronavirus pandemic with important local information to keep you informed and help keep you and your family safe. We have been bringing you the Governor's weekday 2:00 pm briefings, as well as providing a great deal of coverage with the NewsHour, Nova, and Frontline for national information and Lakeland News for the local perspective. We've done this in a challenging working environment and with looming local financial challenges. We've invested in technology that allows us to provide local coverage remotely so that Lakeland News can continue to gather the local news and keep both the public and our reporters, safe. We begin our June pledge drive soon. Please consider helping to support the programming that you rely on from Lakeland PBS. You can make a contribution online right now at lptv.org. Please know that your membership contributions are by far our most important source of revenue. We are deeply grateful for the support of our members because without you, we can't provide this important programming.

As I'm writing this, it's May 18th, and even though Governor Walz lifted the stay-at-home order for some businesses, here at Lakeland PBS, we are still keeping our office closed to the public. We typically get very few visitors, so the impact to our supporters and the public is minimal. By limiting exposure to others, we hope to keep both the public and our staff healthy so that we can continue to provide you with the important programming that you rely on. While some staff are working in the office, many are either fully working from home, or only coming in when the job requires it.

The coronavirus pandemic has created a very difficult situation for all of us and we all will be dealing with this for months. Please know that our staff members are working hard to serve you. We are available via phone Monday through Friday during business hours at 800-292-0922. You can also email general questions to us at viewerservices@lptv.org and we will quickly respond. To contact our Lakeland News staff, you can send an email to news@lptv.org or call 877-440-NEWS. In addition, our web site is always a great resource for information including our full program schedule, along with a great deal of streaming video content including all of our past news stories and other local programming like Common Ground, Backroads, Lakeland Currents, and much more. Check it out at lptv.org.

In closing, I want to let you know about a very important milestone coming up for Lakeland PBS. Back on June 1, 1980, KAWE channel 9 signed on the air for the first time, and the very first show we aired was Sesame Street! So much has changed since that time. Back in 1980, we broadcast just one channel with no Lakeland News and very limited local programming. During the summer, we didn't even turn the transmitter on until noon because school was out, which meant that we didn't need to broadcast instructional television programming that was used by school districts throughout northern Minnesota during the school year. Then in 1988 we constructed and put KAWB channel 22 on the air serving central Minnesota. Jumping forward to today, we broadcast six channels 24x7 and live stream our local news and will soon be live streaming our entire Lakeland Prime main channel. So much has changed, but our focus on serving you has remained the same.

We had big plans to host a forty-year anniversary gala dinner on June 1 and even had arranged for the President of PBS, Paula Kerger, to attend. Due to the coronavirus pandemic, like other birthday parties, we can't invite you to join us right now and our gala dinner is postponed indefinitely. Regardless of a big celebration event, we have a great deal to be thankful for. Providing a local public television service for forty years in a rural region like this has been a challenge. When Paula Kerger joined us here to help us celebrate the grand opening for our new building five years ago, during her remarks, she called Lakeland PBS "The Bemidji Miracle." It really is no miracle. Lakeland PBS has been made possible by the support of the generous and caring people just like you throughout northern and central Minnesota.

As always, thank you for your generous support

RE: KAWE - Celebrating 40 Years

Thursday, June 18 at 7pm; Saturday, June 20 at 9pm

Explore the beginning of KAWE and formative years of Lakeland PBS with conversations from those who were there from the beginning, bringing local PBS to northern Minnesota; with interviews from Doug St. Onge, Jean Castle, Al Evans, Ron Johnson, Tom Holter and Don Checots (pictured).

Reflecting on 40 Years at Lakeland PBS

In September of 2019, Ron Johnson celebrated 40 years of employment at Lakeland PBS. We asked Ron to share some reflections on his many years of service at the station.

It is difficult to summarize four decades of memories into a few paragraphs so I approached this by focusing on three basic areas. I have seen significant changes regarding staff size, operations, and technology during my 40 plus years of employment at Lakeland Public Television.

I was hired by Northern Minnesota Public Television, Inc. in September of 1979. My background in graphic design, advertising and radio/television broadcasting made me a versatile employee for a start-up television station that was planning to begin broadcasting in a matter of weeks. I was actually the first person hired by our first General Manager, Don Checots. The staff at that time consisted of just six employees including myself. Construction problems with our transmission tower resulted in several delays and KAWE-TV eventually signed on the air for the very first time on June 1, 1980.

We had an extremely small staff during our first year of operation. Every staff member had to wear "many hats" and we were very dependent on volunteers. In my first few years at KAWE - in addition to my position as graphic designer - I worked in practically every department at the station performing a variety of duties from engineer assistant to producer/director; from master control operator to photographer; from announcer to continuity writer. The staff had grown to 16 by the time we completed our first year of operation. Today, Lakeland PBS employs a staff of 29 and also utilizes dozens of volunteers.

The broadcast day during our first year of operations was 3pm until 11pm during the summer months. During the school year (September - May) we added Instructional Television (ITV) programming and our weekday hours were 12:30pm until 11pm. In our second year, ITV expanded significantly and our hours of operation on week-days during the school year were 8:45am - 11:00pm. Today, we have 6 separate digital channels - each broadcasting 24 hours a day seven days a week.

Our coverage area has also increased considerably over the past 40 years. When we signed on back in 1980, we were KAWE-TV with an office/studio in Bemidji that served only northern Minnesota. In March of 1988, we expanded into central Minnesota with KAWB-TV, and eventually added a second office/studio in Brainerd. In 2004, our coverage expanded again to include satellite coverage into central and southern Minnesota and a portion of western Wisconsin. Today, viewers can watch us anywhere in the world via the internet.

Another big change is the technology. When I was hired back in 1979, the station did not have a single computer. Now, every staff member has one. Of course, the recent conversion to digital broadcasting and high definition television is probably the most significant change.

Specifically, the area of graphic design has totally changed over the past 40 years. In the early years, print design was accomplished using markers and paste-ups, on-air graphics were photographed and aired as slides, and animation was accomplished with frame editing. Today, every aspect of my job is done via the computer.

Lakeland PBS has been a very interesting, enjoyable, and rewarding place to work. Hundreds of people have worked at Lakeland PBS over the past 40 years... and I have worked with every one of them!

A Dream, Persistence and Reality

In the late 50's, educational television in the United States was only a few years old but Dr. Harold Fleming, of Bemidji State College, began to study the possibilities of having access to educational TV. By the time Channel 9 became fact and actually went on the air, that dream would have caused much anguish, agonizing sleepless nights, and a barrage of feverish ramblings. But it was worth it.

1966 - Bemidji School Superintendent, Ray Witt, applies for and is awarded a federal grant in the amount of $7,419 to do a feasibility study on behalf of area educators.

1967 - Dr. John Yourd is appointed college representative to the Educational Research and Development Council. He holds that post for 5 or 6 years until Dr. Lowell Vaughn becomes Bemidji State's council member.

1968 - Bemidji State College is approached to see if it would be willing to provide leadership to establish an educational TV station on the college campus. Dr. Robert Decker, president of the college, agrees that such activity falls within the mission of the college.

1970 - Bunyanland Educational Television, Inc. is founded to provide a corporation to raise funds to develop the channel 9 facility.

1973 - A law is passed which provides official legitimacy for the project and permits contractual arrangements.

1975 - Dr. Yourd assumes the presidency of Bunyanland Educational TV. In July, a proposal is put together and presented to the Minnesota Governor's Rural Development Council requesting $30,000. An office site is established on the Bemidji State University campus. The corporation name is changed to "Northern Minnesota Public Television, Inc."

1976 - A feasibility study is completed. The outcome decrees: too few people know what public TV is; and the governing board needs a broader base of members. Efforts are made to rectify those deficiencies. John Yourd explains the plans for a new station to area legislators. It is decided that the range of the area to be covered by the new facility should be broadened. The plan now favors a full power station with a 1,000 foot tower to distribute a signal 90 miles.

Northern Minnesota Public Television Capital Campaign Committee (l to r) John Yourd, Wayne Dondelinger, John Baer, Les Harmon and William Schwartz - 1977

1977 - The amount of $440,000 is approved by the Minnesota Legislature. It is the first major funding received for construction, but it is not enough. A capital campaign begins, providing local area residents with the opportunity to show their active support of public TV. The objective is $200,000. Application for a construction permit is submitted to the Federal Communications Commission.

1978 - By June, monies are received from several major foundations, as well as area businesses and supporters from Cass Lake, Walker, Blackduck, Bagley, and Bemidji. Total raised is $175,000. Unfortunately, the HEW application is turned down because a small station in Ontario would be too close to the proposed tower site at Blackduck. The FCC is called upon to make an official request to the Canadian government on behalf of NMPTV, and John Yourd contacts several authorities in Canada to speed up the decision. As the final deadline arrives, the crisis is resolved. Canada at last wires the information that it will not object to the short spacing.

1979 - The FCC issues a construction permit to build the station. The most basic equipment is ordered. A specific agreement is drawn up to house the studios on the BSU campus for 20 years. A legal exception is found by the State Executive Council which is composed of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Auditor and Attorney General. A station manager, Don Checots, and an engineer, Jim Landes, are hired. Ron Johnson, who is the Design/Promotion Manager at KAWE/KAWB - TV, was hired at about the same time. John Yourd and Robert K. Smith's trips to St. Paul, and Senator Gerald Willet's persistence in the state legislature, helps keep the request for necessary funds alive.

1980 - Governor Quie signs the document and the Lease is accepted. The Corporation of Public Broadcasting provides the funds for the satellite dish found on the campus. The transmitter building is completed. The tower is finally completed after some delay due to construction problems, and KAWE, Channel 9 signs on the air, for the first time, at 8:50:54 am on Sunday, June 1.
